From Jefferson to Jobs — Americans are Innovators

By Pam Iorio

The summit occurred shortly after the death of Steve Jobs, and its achievements were the result of a powerful display of innovation. Leave my phone I stop to think about the letter copying machine I had to use every day. Fall 2011 TED CO2 Center for Leadership Speaker Series, we had the honor of hosting Steve Jobs, co-founder of the company he founded only to return later and lead it to new heights. Great leaders have a resilient nature — our Founding Fathers were familiar with the concept of resilience. In his analogy, he stated that a leadership hockey bag contains the following:

- The Core Values: excellence, innovation, integrity, and leadership.
- The Core Strengths: accountability, enthusiasm, confidence, and control.
- The Core Organization: focus, clarity, and passion.

The core of the Tampa Bay Lightning is their core values, because of the uniqueness of the organization. The values include excellence, innovation, integrity, and leadership. The core strengths are accountability, enthusiasm, confidence, and control. The core organization is focus, clarity, and passion. The core values are the key to success. The core strengths are the key to success. The core organization is the key to success. The core values are excellence, innovation, integrity, and leadership. The core strengths are accountability, enthusiasm, confidence, and control. The core organization is focus, clarity, and passion.

WHAT’S IN YOUR LEADERSHIP “HOCKEY BAG”

by Bella L. Galperin, Ph.D.

With the beginning of a new season, it’s time to get your leadership gear out of your closet. Whether your intention is to support our hockey team by wearing a hockey jersey or cheer for the sport, it’s time to get your gear out at one of our local rinks. For those who use the building are planning the sport, it’s important to make sure all the necessary gear is in the hockey bag. A stick is a must, with a squeegee and tape, gloves, helmet and other protective gear such as a mouth guard, shin guards, shoulder guard, neck guard, glasses and pads.

With all the新鲜 ideas from thought leaders across this country and start making needed changes to old ways of doing business, and it’s time to do the same as a leader. Let’s take the fresh ideas from thought leaders across this country and start making needed changes to old ways of doing business, and it’s time to do the same as a leader.

Our country has already trod most new ways of being business and of living. In the college student whom I visited in 1100 as a leader-in- residence at The University of Tampa, I saw smart, technology savvy and current students making themselves as part of America’s future, successful and contributing members of our society. They demonstrated the kind of leadership we need in this country. Let’s take the fresh ideas from thought leaders across this country and start making needed changes to old ways of doing business, and it’s time to do the same as a leader. Steve Griggs, thank you for reminding us of the importance of leadership development and how leadership is a critical component to make a difference and to stay true to our core values. You have certainly inspired me to change my own habits before heading to the rink.

Griggs ended his presentation, with some advice: “For all the students out there, remember this, if you want to be great leaders, you must lead by example. If you want to be great leaders, you must be able to motivate and inspire others to do the same. Think about the people you admire, and make sure you are living up to their standards.”

WHATS IN YOUR LEADERSHIP “HOCKEY BAG”

by Bella L. Galperin, Ph.D.

With the beginning of a new season, its time to get your hockey bag ready and out of your closet. Hockey is as much an American sport as it is a Canadian sport. Whether you are a hardcore hockey fan or spend time watching the sport, it’s important to make sure all the necessary gear is in the hockey bag. Griggs explained that a world-class hockey bag contains the following:

•   A proper hockey stick
•   A hockey jersey
•   A hockey helmet
•   A pair of hockey gloves
•   A pair of hockey skates
•   A pair of protective gear

The first I had heard about any rules for civility was when I studied the Code of Chivalry, a sort of handbook for knights, which lists the qualities of leadership and provides advice to leaders. The code is no longer in effect, but it is still a useful guide for today.

The code states that a leader must be "gentle and courteous" and "always kind and considerate." These principles have stood the test of time and are just as relevant today as they were in the Middle Ages.

In addition, the code states that a leader must be "honest and truthful" and "always speak the truth." These principles are just as important today as they were in the Middle Ages. Leaders must be able to communicate their ideas clearly and effectively.

Finally, the code states that a leader must be "wise and prudent." This means that leaders must be able to make sound decisions and consider the consequences of their actions.

These principles are just as important today as they were in the Middle Ages. Leaders must be able to communicate their ideas clearly and effectively.

WHERE IS LEADERSHIP WITHOUT CIVILITY?

By F. Frank Ghannadian, Ph.D.

The concept of civility has been a topic of discussion for many years. However, the importance of the message of civility is the good that people from a variety of backgrounds, cultures and religions work together to create. It is the essence of leadership without civility.

The first time I heard about any rules for civility was when I studied the Code of Chivalry, a sort of handbook for knights, which lists the qualities of leadership and provides advice to leaders. The code is no longer in effect, but it is still a useful guide for today. Leaders must be able to communicate their ideas clearly and effectively.

Choosing Civility

P. M. Forni visited the UT campus on Oct. 6 to kick off the Continuing Education Leadership Program (2004). In the book, Forni encourages leaders to remember that to lead is to serve and to tolerate imperfections, saying, “After all, everyone could be perfect, if only they were perfect.”

Civility and leadership actually go hand in hand, just as ethical behavior and, at the same time, there is no good leadership.

The importance of the message of civility is the good that comes to one through this type of behavior. Forni tells his students to think about their dog or cat, asking how they feel when
